

Airlines step up on sustainability

Posted on May 13, 2021 by News Editor

A4A Vice President for Environmental Affairs Nancy Young highlighted US airlines' sustainability surge at a recent International Aviation Club virtual event. US carriers are now working toward an industry-wide goal of net-zero carbon emissions by 2050. "It really is A4A and its members embracing the full range of a sustainable recovery," Young said.

