Private jet fleet operator flyExclusive has teamed up with SmartSky Networks, the innovative air-to-ground (ATG) inflight connectivity provider, to display SmartSky's latest technology onboard a flyExclusive jet at this year's NBAA-BACE conference in Florida.

flyExclusive and SmartSky are showcasing their advanced ATG capabilities and the companies say the NBAA display follows an initial successful installation of SmartSky hardware on Cessna Citation X series business jets at flyExclusive's facilities in North Carolina.

Jim Segrave, Founder and CEO at flyExclusive, said: "At flyExclusive, we pride ourselves on delivering a premium experience every time out of the gate. SmartSky delivers dependable and secure connectivity that not only enhances the passenger experience, offering the ability to live stream and conduct high quality video calling, but also provides real-time data transfer to and from the aircraft. Our Cessna Citation X has successfully used the SmartSky system, and we've experienced the connectivity firsthand - it's a fantastic product."

Dave Helfgott, CEO of SmartSky, added: “SmartSky and flyExclusive are companies that value innovation and delivering the very best for our customers. Our alignment in providing a consistent, uninterrupted service to customers speaks for itself. We look forward to showcasing our nationwide coverage, reliable connectivity, and easy-to-install technology alongside flyExclusive at NBAA 2022.”
