

Skyline Editorial: Winter recreation

Posted on January 31, 2018 by Aram Gesar

When it comes to winter recreation, why limit yourself to the same-old, same place icy escapades. We have curated lots of fresh destinations for you in our Winter issue.

We uncover travel scams in “Fishy Business” or discover delicious “Apres Ski Drinks” cocktails to warm you up on the slopes. “Eco-Luxury” takes us to Mexico with a resort innovating the Eco concept from funky to luxury.

Our online news team reports monthly on the global status of airline WiFi, “Best Inflight WiFi in the US” in Voyager highlights the top performers, because we have to have connectivity all the time.

It’s hard to believe but we found “Luxury Escapes Near The Airport” all over the world, from the Netherlands, South Africa, Thailand, Georgia, to Bermuda.

Our travel editors make us discover “Privacy is the New Luxury” at LAX airport, luxury charter yachts in “Dubai Yachts” or get your travel tips for your first time at “Mardi Gras” in New Orleans. “Utah Wins the Gold for Winter Fun” lets you be an Winter Olympic athlete without having to go to Korea.

“What to Do When Mezcal Finds You” and once it does, you’ll never be the same. Justin takes us to Mexico and walks us through his journey and love for Mezcal. Wearables are finally take off in “Wear Tech”, read how travel “Digital Assistant” can simplify your trips. “Wanderlust” takes us on an adventure in Vancouver, and we discover the magic of “Buenos Aires”.

Top whiskey distilleries in Ireland are featured in “Water of Life”, and enjoy one of my favorite LA restaurants in “Feast in Modern Sushi”.

We’ll be making some exciting changes at Frequent Flyer & AirGuide over the coming months, we will available at even more airlines, airports and destination hotels globally. I hope this issue gives you fresh reasons to hop over and connect with the “joie de vivre” that, for me, will be one of its defining qualities.

Please send me a note at feedback@AirGuideOnline.com if there’s anything you would or wouldn’t like to see from us as we evolve—but you can be certain we will remain as committed as ever to sparking the curiosity that inspires you to hit the road. I can’t wait to see where we’ll go together.
