Swiss International has launched a new range of business class amenity kits in partnership with Swiss army knife and luggage brand Victorinox. The new kits come in six designs, which will be rotated on board, and have been designed to be reused after the flight.

The range includes a passport holder, a travel toiletries bag, and “a high quality metal tin that is modelled on the Victorinox suitcase design and can find further use as a pen or pencil box”.

The kits all contain a toothbrush and toothpaste, lip salve, sleep mask, socks and ear plugs, and will be available on Swiss flights for the next three years.

This spring the carrier is also offering premium passengers on intercontinental flights a range of meals created by Franck Reynaud, Michelin starred chef de cuisine Canton Valais ski and vacation resort Hostellerie du Pas de l'Ours.

Dishes include gravad Valais perch with horseradish and yogurt remoulade, served with absinthe-marinated cucumber, braised beef with Humagne Rouge sauce, and lemon sole with bouillabaisse sauce. swiss.com
